COVERCOME

We are pleased to welcome you to International ECOS-TCS Congress!

Extracorporeal Organ Support (ECOS) and Temporary Circulatory Support (TCS) systems have become increasingly vital in the management of critically ill patients. These advanced technologies are frequently employed to treat patients experiencing cardiac, respiratory, kidney, and liver failure, as well as those requiring blood purification techniques...

We will explore innovative systems and platforms designed to support or replace organs affected by sepsis, trauma, or acute cardiac, respiratory, kidney, or liver diseases. A dedicated congress track will focus on Temporary Circulatory Support (TCS) devices, increasingly utilized by interventional cardiologists and intensivists or managing cardiogenic shock.

This Congress will feature cutting-edge discussions on the indications and outcomes of extracorporeal gas exchange techniques, including venovenous ECMO and ECCO2R, for managing acute respiratory failure. Dedicated sessions will explore the latest evidence and practical management strategies for patients with acute kidney injury requiring renal replacement therapy, acute liver failure, or conditions necessitating emergent blood purification.

This unique interdisciplinary forum will bring together cardiologists (particularly interventional cardiologists), heart and lung surgeons, pulmonologists, nephrologists, intensivists, hematologists, emergency physicians, anesthesiologists, respiratory therapists, perfusionists, and nurses to engage with world-renowned experts and discuss all theoretical and practical aspects of these evolving and promising technologies.

Have a successful congress!
